In 2004, AutoCAD was the most popular CAD software with approximately 6.9 million users, followed by the top 2 apps, Inventor and Creo 3D, with over 3 million and nearly 2.3 million users respectively. AutoCAD has been the top-selling desktop CAD software every year since its release. In 2006, AutoCAD was the first software application to reach 100 million downloads and the most popular desktop application on the iTunes App Store in April 2007. AutoCAD runs on the Microsoft Windows operating system, with the notable exception of AutoCAD Architecture, which runs on Linux and Mac OS X. AutoCAD versions go back to the year 1980. There were initially three versions, AutoCAD 1980, AutoCAD 1981, and AutoCAD 1982. The 1981 version had three components: an initial release, a Technical Refresher, and an Introductory Course. AutoCAD 1982, released in December 1982, initially included two components, an Introductory Course and a Technical Refresher. Both versions of the 1981 product were sold via computer companies like CMC, Inc, Datamatics, DEC, or Wang. Heterotrophic cultivation of Arthrospira maxima for biofloc production. Various methods have been used for the cultivation of Arthrospira maxima for the production of biofloc. In this study, three heterotrophic cultures of A. maxima were carried out in 7-l bubble column photobioreactors to achieve biofloc production. Bioflocs were obtained from a three-stage system comprising surface filtration, suspended growth and settling, and used for the development of a flocculant and a clarifier for wastewater treatment. The three sets of culture conditions used were optimized to produce the best flocculant performance. The system reached a flocculation efficiency of 83% and improved sludge dewatering properties from 45% to 53%. A. maxima biomass-flocculant suspension yield and uptake were 0.092 g/l and 0.055 g/g, respectively. High-speed separation-induced production of the flocculant. Under optimal culture conditions, A. maxima bioflocs could be obtained using tap water as a culture medium. The optimal conditions consisted of: a total dissolved solids (TDS) concentration of 7.3 g/l, an alkalinity of 1.5 mg CaCO<sub>3</sub>/l, and an ammonium nitrogen (NH<sub>4</sub>+) concentration of 0.32 mg/l.

With the prospect of remand in mind, we will limit our decision to the minimal facts necessary to resolve the issue before us. Our de novo review is appropriate because Judge Wallace's decision was based on an interpretation of the federal constitution. We will cite federal cases because the Supreme Court of the United States has expressed views on the issue of double jeopardy, but we will not adopt a construction of the Tennessee Constitution based solely on the Supreme Court's views.
