The EU's Lisbon Treaty, signed in March 2009, was intended to be ratified by all EU nations, to give the EU expanded powers. The UK, however, decided to hold a referendum in the UK over whether the Lisbon Treaty should be ratified or not. They then won the referendum and the UK left the EU on 29th March, so that vote is the reason the UK is not part of the EU now. However, one of the purposes of the Lisbon Treaty was to give the EU expanded powers, so did the other EU members agree to sign up to the new treaty? If so, how exactly was the deal done? A: Source: Wikipedia -- Treaty of Lisbon The Treaty of Lisbon was ratified by 26 of the 27 EU member states, with the Irish parliament rejecting the treaty. 27. Before the Treaty entered into force, the ratification process has been completed by the Republic of Ireland, which seceded from the European Union on 29 March 2014. The UK began implementing its withdrawal agreement from the EU, which basically allowed the UK to completely leave the EU, March 29th, 2014 As previously agreed, the UK will begin a two-year transition period from the date of withdrawal. During this period, the UK will continue to have full access to the EU institutions and to the internal market. Citizens and the movements of people will not be affected. This provided the UK with a transition period that allowed it to actually fully leave the EU The withdrawal agreement concludes a 21 year process of negotiations between the EU and the UK. With this treaty, the EU and the UK formally resolved all outstanding issues between the two, and have laid the foundation for the future relationship between both

U.Vienna, Austria, 18th June 2017 - The Austrian Federal Ministry of Health and the Austrian Agency for Health and Food Safety (AGES) are once again presenting the latest scientific facts and insights on the subject of the vulnerability of food and feed supply chains to microbiological risks. This is the second of a series of mini-conferences organised by the Austrian Federal Ministry of Health in cooperation with the Austria Agency for Health and Food Safety (AGES). The five participants, including the Minister, will each have the opportunity to present their findings in a subsequent press conference. At the beginning of the press conference, the Minister for Health Dr. Josef Moser will present the latest developments in the field of Food Safety and Hygiene. Following the presentation of the latest news and findings, a panel discussion will be held on the subject of the vulnerability of food and feed supply chains to microbiological risks. The panel will include Dr. Medhi Mimsi, Swiss Federal Office for the Environment (FOEN), Dr. Hermann Maurer, Executive Director of the Austrian Agency for Health and Food Safety (AGES) and Klaus Padovani, D.A.G. at the Swiss Federal Office for the Environment (FOEN). In a press release, the Federal Ministry for Health confirmed that the risk of contamination by mycotoxins of food and feed for human and animal consumption will increase significantly during the next decades. Furthermore, the broad-spectrum antibiotics used in the feed production process will continue to pose a considerable risk of biological contamination. The keynote speaker at the press conference, Dr. med. Josef T. Moser (Austrian Federal Minister of Health), will comment on the following topics: “The spectrum of risks presented by microbiological hazards has expanded significantly in recent years. The risks to human health and the environment will increase in the next decade. The consequences
